Over the past twenty years, the OATF has facilitated inter-agency collaboration between non-profits, for-profits, public agencies, and local businesses.

The OATF aims to:

- Organize special educational programs for the community. Recent events include: “Get Connected: A free tech fair for older adults”; “Westside Health and Wellness Conference”; and lectures by experts on a variety of topics.
- Foster information sharing among service providers to older adults and caregivers.

We encourage you to look for members of the OATF who are marked with a OATF throughout this guide. They are committed to providing quality services to older adults in our community.

The Santa Monica Commission for the Senior Community (CSC):

GREEN BURIAL
THE ECO-FRIENDLY ALTERNATIVE TO TRADITIONAL BURIAL

With traditional burial, there are

- millions of pounds of metal from caskets
- millions of pounds of concrete from burial vaults
- hundreds of thousands of gallons of toxic embalming fluid placed in the ground and are either hazardous or imperishable.

With green burial, there are

- no caskets containing metals; only decomposable materials such as simple wooden or wicker caskets, organic burial shrouds and biodegradable urns are used
- no cement vaults
- no toxic embalming fluid offering an eco-friendly process to return our bodies to earth.

In Eternal Meadow, Woodlawn’s new green burial section, eco-friendly concepts are also at work above ground. Eternal Meadow is a naturalistic wildflower meadow garden of native California plants that provides habitat in the midst of Santa Monica for native birds and pollinator insects like the endangered Monarch butterfly. Green burial nurtures the natural growth cycles of the habitat provided by Eternal Meadow, fosters a greater union with nature, and is a meaningful way to honor the life of a loved one. Contact our office for more information.

As Americans Age, Caregiving Challenges Only Increase

Brain research has grown as people continue to live longer, more Americans are caring for someone with a chronic condition, disability or old age. According to the Caregiver Action Network, there are approximately 90 million family caregivers in the U.S. today and two out of every five adults care for a family member. As the baby boomer generation ages, caregiving will continue to be a crucial issue among Americans.

Steven Zarit, PhD has been a distinguished professor in the Department of Human Development and Family Studies at Penn State University and adjunct professor at the Institute of Gerontology, College of Health Sciences, Jönköping University in Sweden. He has conducted numerous research studies on caregivers and developed interventions and programs to lower burden and improve well-being of caregivers. He also studied intergenerational family relationships and health and functioning in very late life. He serves on the board of directors of the National Adult Day Services Association and is a former Alzheimer’s Association board member.

The American Psychological Association (APA) recently asked Dr. Zarit the following six questions:

APA: How has the role of caregiver changed in the U.S.? Given the growing diversity of the U.S. population, how does ethnicity and culture factor into caregiving today?

Zarit: Although historical statistics are rare, it is clear that more people are providing ongoing care to family members for disabilities and other special needs than ever before. A 2009 report from the National Alliance on Caregiving indicated that 28 percent of adults are providing regular help to another person. This care mostly goes to an older person, but it may also include younger individuals — special needs children, individuals with severe chronic mental health problems and so on. Looking specifically at older people, the amount of care has increased because people are living longer and reach ages where disabilities are common. Furthermore, people appear to live longer than in the past after the onset of disabilities, including the cognitive problems associated with neurodegenerative conditions, such as dementia.

Another change is that families have fewer resources for providing care. Family care has often been taken on by women in the family, specifically daughters and daughters-in-law. Over the last 50 years, more women entering the workforce has raised the challenge of how to maintain employment while providing care to an elder while, in some cases, also taking care of children. Smaller family size also means there are fewer offspring for providing care to a parent. One benefit of increased longevity is that survival of both spouses in a marriage means that if one of them becomes disabled, the other will usually be able to provide care. There are probably more spouses than daughters now providing care, although their own age and health sometimes is a limiting factor.

There is great diversity among caregivers. One difference is a somewhat greater commitment among African-Americans to helping older parents. A research study found, for example, that middle-aged African-Americans provided relatively more help to parents and somewhat less to their children than did whites, and this difference was associated with stronger feelings about the importance of helping one’s parents.

APA: What are some of the most significant psychological challenges for someone who has assumed the role of caregiver for a parent or other relative?

Zarit: The psychological challenges depend in part on the extent of care. Caregiving can range from providing occasional and minimal care to giving ongoing, extensive and sometimes full-time care. These challenges also depend on the relationship between caregiver and care recipient — it is different for a spouse than for an adult child, for example, to provide care — and the quality of the relationship. In intense care, high stress situations, the challenges are considerable. Caregiving can take up most, if not all, of the caretaker’s time. It can feel like you are always on call and needing to be vigilant. It can also feel like you are engulfed — your life has become just caring and you cannot do the other things... that have been important and rewarding. Another major challenge is coordinating care with doctors and other care providers. Our systems for supporting caregivers are complicated, confusing and underfunded, and caregivers often feel frustrated and alone in trying to navigate through various services.

The other major psychological challenge is that care takes place in the context of a relationship that has a long, complex history. It is helpful in managing difficult care situations to have some emotional distance from the care receiver, so as to plan out appropriate care strategies. But this can be difficult for many caregivers because of the long history, both good and bad, of the relationship. Caregivers may feel criticized and not appreciated by a parent or spouse they are caring for, or by siblings and other relatives.

APA: How common is it for individuals who become caregivers of family members to have specific training or guidance? What would this kind of training entail? Is it available and where would one get it?

Zarit: Few caregivers get training and guidance when they transition into the role. Most never receive any training at all over the entire course of caregiving. The most likely sources are support groups.

Training should begin with practical information about the person’s disease, how to manage it and include information about resources that can be helpful for the care receiver and caregiver. Beyond that, caregivers have been found to benefit from learning problem solving approaches, whether that means learning to manage behavioral or emotional problems of the care receiver, learning to seek more help from other family members or balancing caregiving with other areas in their lives.

APA: What does psychological research say about the effect — good or bad — that long-term caregiving can have on an individual?

Zarit: Research has shown that intense caregiving situations can be harmful to a caregiver’s health and well-being. Caregivers in these situations have higher rates of depressive symptoms, anger, lower positive emotions, greater health problems and higher mortality than age- and gender-matched individuals. However, many caregivers also gain a sense of satisfaction from providing care. They feel they are doing the right thing for a parent or spouse, and this can help them deal with the frustrations they experience.

APA: How can a person determine if he or she would make a good caregiver for a family member?

Zarit: Within families, it is often the person who is good at providing care, and may already do so in other roles. But, all caregivers probably need to learn strategies that will help them be effective — patience, listening to the care receiver, gaining some emotional distance, managing time so that they can get regular breaks, calling on others for help, including family and paid help. In other words, not trying to do everything alone — this is a common pitfall for many caregivers.

APA: What are the psychological benefits and/or drawbacks of a family member acting as a caregiver versus a paid professional?

Zarit: I would not characterize this as an “either-or” issue. When care is more than minimal, it works best when there is a partnership between the family caregiver and paid professionals, who provide regular relief, either through home care or an adult day care program. Family caregivers may anticipate drawbacks to using paid help, such as their parent or spouse may not like the helper or program, but good programs can overcome those types of barriers. When care is around-the-clock and the caregiver and care receiver are in constant company of one another, both of them will welcome a change of scene.

Turning care over to paid help can be difficult, even for a few hours a week. Family caregivers feel guilty or are convinced that no one else can provide the right kind of help for their parent or spouse. Placing a relative in a nursing home can be extremely difficult and challenging. Furthermore, caregiving does not end at the institution’s door. Family members can continue to provide help in the institution and may encounter a variety of new challenges, such as figuring out their role in the institution and how to work with staff.

The American Psychological Association, in Washington, D.C., is the largest scientific and professional organization representing psychology in the United States. APA’s membership includes nearly 130,000 researchers, educators, clinicians, consultants and students. Through its divisions in 54 subfields of psychology and affiliations with 60 state, territorial and Canadian provincial associations, APA works to advance the creation, communication and application of psychological knowledge to benefit society and improve people’s lives.
From Collecting to Declutter...
Struggling to gain control over too much stuff?

Assess your need to gain control of your stuff:

1. Feel overwhelmed when thinking about your clutter?
2. Tried to “clean up” or “organize” yourself repeatedly, with no lasting results?
3. Ashamed to have anyone come to your home?
4. Feel more confused in your home than in the outside world?
5. Find yourself buying more of everything because “you never know when you will run out?”
6. Have multiple copies of books, clothing or any other items because you couldn’t find what you already owned when you needed it?
7. Has a loved one expressed dismay about the way you live?
8. Do you flit from one task to another, feeling like you never get anything done?
9. Find yourself getting distracted easily?
10. Feel like, “What’s the use, it will just get messed up again,” when you begin to declutter?
11. Do you hold onto broken items because “they might come in handy someday,” or “I’m going to fix them someday?”
12. Feel like there will never be enough for you?
13. Find it hard to decide what is worth keeping and what is not worth keeping?
14. Obsess about saving food? Do you have enough canned goods to feed the neighborhood?
15. Do you save garbage - fast food boxes and wrappers, obvious trash, things that smell bad, etc.?

If you have 5 or more “Yes” answers, you may be considered a clutterer.

City and County of Los Angeles
Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program

Protecting the rights and dignity of residents in skilled nursing and residential care facilities throughout Los Angeles County since 1980.

The WISE & Healthy Aging Ombudsman Program is an advocacy group of trained professionals who help protect and ensure the quality of care of individuals living in long-term care facilities. Ombudsmen educate residents and their families about their rights in these facilities, help to resolve complaints and address a variety of issues—which include facility staff training, attitudes, response and behavior; admission and discharge matters; nutrition and dietary concerns; physical therapy; matters of dignity; Medicare, Medi-Cal, SSI, and many other relevant issues.

A number of Ombudsman services are offered to assist residents and their families with these issues:

- Advocacy
  Presenting and promoting residents concerns to a facility’s administration, legislators and policy makers.

- Investigation
  Investigating complaints made by or on behalf of residents.

- Conflict Resolution
  Assisting parties to reach agreements and to resolve conflicts with the residents’ satisfaction as the main focus.

- Education
  Promoting resident and caregiver awareness of their rights, including any pertinent State or Federal regulations.

To find an office near you, call 1-800-334-9473 (WISE)
For emergency after hours, contact the State Crisis line 800-231-4024

Ombudsmen have a State mandate to receive reports and conduct preliminary investigations of allegations of elder or dependent adult abuse in long-term care facilities. The Ombudsman Program is partially funded by the County of Los Angeles Workforce Development, Aging and Community Services; Area Agency on Aging, through the older Americans Act of 1965, as amended; and the City of Los Angeles Department of Aging.

SMARTER than a scammer

A PROJECT OF
WISE & HEALTHY AGING

Lottery Scam
A letter or an email message arrives that claims you’ve won a foreign lottery or online sweepstakes. The letter may appear to be from a government agency, a bank, a well-known national company, or a company you never heard of. Regardless of the return address, the only thing between you and your winnings: a check or wire transfer from you to cover taxes, fees, shipping costs, or insurance.

An offer to play a foreign lottery can be tempting and fun, but it’s also illegal. If a sweepstakes run by an American company is legitimate, you won’t have to pay to enter or to win. That’s the law. No federal government agency runs or supervises a lottery; regardless, if you have to pay, it’s a purchase, not a prize.

Identify Theft
Someone gets your personal information and runs up bills in your name. They might use your Social Security or Medicare number, your credit card, or your medical insurance – along with your good name. How would you know? You could get bills for things you didn’t buy or services you didn’t get. Your bank account might have withdrawals you didn’t make. You might not get bills you expect. You should check your credit report regularly to ensure that no unauthorized accounts are in your name.

Romance Scam
Not everyone using online dating sites is looking for love. Scammers create fake online profiles using photos of other people — even stolen pictures of real military personnel. They profess their love quickly. And they tug at your heartstrings with made-up stories about how they need money — for emergencies, hospital bills, or travel. Why all of the tricks? They’re looking to steal your money.

Scammers may also reach out through your email, Facebook, on dating websites.

An online love interest who asks for money is almost certainly a scam artist.

Remember, these scammer do not want to get into your pants they want to get into your pocket book.

Grandparent Scam/Imposter Scam
You get a call or an email. It might say you’ve won a prize. It might seem to come from a government official. Maybe it seems to be from someone you know – your grandchild, a relative or a friend. It’s commonly someone who says they’re your grandchild and that they are in jail in a foreign country. Or maybe it’s from someone you feel like you know, but you haven’t met in person – say, a person you met online who you’ve been writing to. Whatever the story, the request is the same: wire money to pay taxes or fees, or to help someone you care about. No government agency will ever ask you to wire money. Ask questions and you’ll likely find that the story starts to fall apart.

Charity Fraud
Someone contacts you asking for a donation to their charity. It sounds like a group you’ve heard of, it seems real, and you want to help. How can you tell what charity is legitimate and what’s a scam? Scammers want your money quickly. Charity scammers often pressure you to donate right away. They might ask for cash, and might even offer to send a courier or ask you to wire money. Scammers often refuse to send you information about the charity, give you details, or tell you how the money will be used. They might even thank you for a pledge you don’t remember making.
Here’s what you can do: 1. Take your time. Tell callers to send you information by mail. For requests you get in the mail, do your research. Is it a real group? What percentage of your donation goes to the charity? Is your donation tax-deductible? How do they want you to pay? Rule out anyone who asks you to send cash or wire money. Chances are, that’s a scam.

IRS & Other Government Entity Scams
The IRS continues to warn the public to be alert for telephone scams. These callers claim to be with the IRS. The scammers often demand money to pay taxes. Some may try to con you by saying that you’re due a refund. The refund is a fake lure so you’ll give them your banking or other private financial information.

These con artists can sound convincing when they call. They may even know a lot about you. They may alter the caller ID to make it look like the IRS is calling. They use fake names and bogus IRS badge numbers. If you don’t answer, they often leave an “urgent” callback request.

These scams really get going during tax time. Remember, the IRS does not cold call citizens.

The “Nigerian” Email Scam
The people behind these messages claim to be officials, businesspeople, or the surviving spouses of former government honchos in Nigeria or another country whose money is tied up temporarily. They offer to transfer lots of money into your bank account if you will pay the fees or “taxes” they need to get their money. If you respond to the initial offer, you may receive documents that look “official.”

The emails are from crooks trying to steal your money or your identity. Inevitably, emergencies come up, requiring more of your money and delaying the “transfer” of funds to your account. In the end, there aren’t any profits for you, and your money is gone along with the thief who stole it. According to State Department reports, people who have responded to these emails have been beaten, subjected to threats and extortion, and in some cases, murdered.

These emails can really tug at your heartstrings and appeal to your sense of altruism. Successful scam artists know exactly how to get you to give up your money. If you get an email asking you to send money to help out a stranger, delete it. Someone is up to no good, and trying to manipulate your emotions.

Medicare Fraud/Healthcare Scams
You see an ad on TV, telling you about a new law that requires you to get a new health care card. Maybe you get a call offering you big discounts on health insurance. Or maybe someone says they’re from the government, and they need your Medicare number to issue you a new card. Scammers follow the headlines.

Do you really have to get a new health care card? Is that discounted insurance a good deal? Is that “government official” really from the government? The answer to all three is almost always: No.

Here’s what you can do: 1. Stop. Check it out. Before you share your information, call Medicare (1-800-MEDICARE), do some research, and check with someone you trust.

Tech Support Scams/Microsoft Scam
Scammers have been peddling bogus security software for years. They set up fake websites, offer free “security” scans, and send alarming messages to try to convince you that your computer is infected. Then, they try to sell you software to fix the problem. At best, the software is worthless or available elsewhere for free. At worst, it could be malware — software designed to give criminals access to your computer and your personal information.

The latest version of the scam begins with a phone call. Scammers can get your name and other basic information from public directories. They might even guess what computer software you’re using.
Red Flags of Scammers (National Fraud Information Center):

- A promise that you can win money, make money, or borrow money easily;
- A demand that you act immediately or else miss out on this great opportunity;
- A refusal to send you written information before you agree to buy or donate;
- An attempt to scare you into buying something;
- Insistence that you wire money or have a courier pick up your payment; and,
- A refusal to stop calling after you’ve asked not to be called again.

How can I prevent being scammed?

- Don’t answer phone if you don’t recognize the number. If it’s someone who needs to talk to you for a legitimate reason, they will leave a message.
- If you do answer the phone and the person is selling something hang up.
- Don’t wire money to cover travel, medical emergencies, hotel bills, hospital bills, visas, losses from a temporary financial setback. In fact, it’s a good idea to never wire money period, unless you know for sure that your family or friend is abroad and in trouble.
- Don’t send money to tide someone over after a mugging or robbery, and don’t do anyone a favor by making an online purchase or forwarding a package to another country.
- Do not use public Wi-Fi to check sensitive financial information, or to make purchases using your credit card.
- Social media: If you are on sites like Facebook, make sure that your privacy settings don’t allow strangers to view your information.

Protecting Yourself...

Do:
- Stay active with your local senior center. It can be a valuable source of information.
- Plan for your care as you age. Identify reliable people who can provide assistance if needed.
- Review your finances regularly. Be extremely cautious when selecting “trustworthy” individuals to help manage your affairs when needed.
- Participate in community activities. Volunteering is a great way to have contact with others and make friends. Call WISE & Healthy Aging at 310-394-9871 for volunteer opportunities.

Don’t:
- Don’t put off preparing your future physical and financial needs.
- Don’t accept personal care from anyone in exchange for property or assets without a lawyer or other trusted advocate to witness the transaction.
- Don’t allow others to keep details of your finances from you.
- Don’t give out personal or financial information to people you don’t know, especially over the phone.
- Don’t sign legal documents that you do not understand.

1. Get a Kit of emergency supplies.
Be prepared to improvise and use what you have on hand to make it on your own for at least three days, maybe longer. While there are many things that might make you more comfortable, think first about fresh water, food and clean air.

Recommended Supplies to Include in a Basic Kit:
- Water: one gallon per person per day, for drinking and sanitation
- Non-perishable food: at least a three-day supply
- Flashlight and extra batteries
- First Aid kit
- Whistle to signal for help
- Filter mask or cotton t-shirt, to help filter the air
- Moist towelettes, garbage bags and plastic ties for personal sanitation
- Wrench or pliers to turn off utilities
- Battery-powered or hand crank radio and a NOAA Weather Radio with tone alert and extra batteries
- Manual can opener if kit contains canned food
- Plastic sheeting and duct tape, to shelter-in-place
- Important family documents
- Items for unique family needs, such as daily prescription medication or pet food

Include Medications and Medical Supplies: If you take medicine or use a medical treatment on a daily basis, be sure you have what you need on hand to make it on your own for at least a week and keep a copy of your prescriptions as well as dosage or treatment information. If it is not possible to have a week-long supply of medicines and supplies, keep as much as possible on hand and talk to your pharmacist or doctor about what else you should do to prepare. If you undergo routine treatments administered by a clinic or hospital or if you receive regular services such as home health care, treatment or transportation, talk to your service provider about their emergency plans. Work with them to identify back-up service providers within your area and other areas you might evacuate to.

Include Emergency Documents: Include copies of important documents in your emergency supply kits such as family records, medical records, wills, deeds, social security number, charge and bank accounts information and tax records. It is best to keep these documents in a waterproof container. If there is any information related to operating equipment or life-saving devices that you rely on, include those in your emergency kit as well. If you have a communication disability, make sure your emergency information list notes the best way to communicate with you. Also be sure you have cash or travelers checks in your kits in case you need to purchase supplies.

Additional Items: If you use eyeglass, hearing aids and hearing aid batteries, wheelchair batteries or oxygen, be sure you always have extras in your kit. Also have copies of your medical insurance, Medicare and Medicaid cards readily available. If you have a service animal, be sure to include food, water, collar with ID tag, medical records and other emergency pet supplies.

Consider two kits: In one, put everything you will need to stay where you are and make it on your own. The other should be a lightweight, smaller version you can take with you if you have to get away.

2. Make a Plan for what you will do in an emergency.
The reality of a disaster situation is that you will likely not have access to everyday conveniences. To plan in advance, think through the details of your everyday life.

Develop a Family Emergency Plan: Your family may not be together when disaster strikes, so plan how you will contact one another and review what you will do in different situations. Consider a plan where each family member calls, or e-mails, the same friend or relative in the event of an emergency. It may be easier to make a long-distance phone call than to call across town, so an out-of-town contact may be in a better position to communicate among separated family members. Depending on your circumstances and the nature of the attack, the first important decision is whether you stay put or get away. You should understand and plan for both possibilities. Watch television and listen to the radio for official instructions as they become available.
Create a Personal Support Network: If you anticipate needing assistance during a disaster, ask family, friends and others to be part of your plan. Share each aspect of your emergency plan with everyone in your group, including a friend or relative in another area who would not be impacted by the same emergency who can help if necessary. Include the names and numbers of everyone in your personal support network, as well as your medical providers in your emergency supply kit. Make sure that someone in your personal support network has an extra key to your home and knows where you keep your emergency supplies. If you use a wheelchair or other medical equipment, show friends how to use these devices so they can move you if necessary and teach them how to use any lifesaving equipment or administer medicine in case of an emergency. Practice your plan with those who have agreed to be part of your personal support network.

Create a Plan to Shelter-in-Place: There are circumstances when staying put and creating a barrier between yourself and potentially contaminated air outside, a process known as sheltering-in-place and sealing the room can be a matter of survival. If you see large amounts of debris in the air, or if local authorities say the air is badly contaminated, you may want to shelter-in-place and seal the room. Consider precutting plastic sheeting to seal windows, doors and air vents. Each piece should be several inches larger than the space you want to cover so that you can duct tape it flat against the wall. Label each piece with the location of where it fits. Immediately turn off air conditioning, forced air heating systems, exhaust fans and clothes dryers. Take your emergency supplies and go into the room you have designated. Seal all windows, doors and vents. Understand that sealing the room is a temporary measure to create a barrier between you and contaminated air. Listen to the radio for instructions from local emergency management officials.

Create a Plan to Get Away: Plan in advance how you will assemble your family and anticipate where you will go. Choose several destinations in different directions so you have options in an emergency. Become familiar with alternate routes as well as other means of transportation out of your area. If you do not have a car, plan how you will leave if you have to. If you typically rely on elevators, have a back-up plan in case they are not working. Talk to your neighbors about how you can work together.

Consider Your Pets: Whether you decide to stay put or evacuate, you will need to make plans in advance for your service animal and pets. Keep in mind that what’s best for you is typically what’s best for your animals. If you must evacuate, take your pets with you, if possible. However, if you are going to a public shelter, make sure that they allow pets. Some only allow service animals.

Fire Safety: Plan two ways out of every room in case of fire.

Contact Your Local Emergency Information Management Office: Some local emergency management offices maintain registers of older people so they can be located and assisted quickly in a disaster. Contact your local emergency management agency to see if these services exist where you live or visit ready.gov to find links to government offices in your area.

3. Be Informed about what might happen.
Some of the things you can do to prepare for the unexpected, such as assembling an emergency supply kit and making an emergency plan are the same regardless of the type of emergency. However, it’s important to stay informed about what might happen and know what types of emergencies are likely to affect your region. Be prepared to adapt this information to your personal circumstances and make every effort to follow instructions received from authorities on the scene. Above all, stay calm, be patient and think before you act.

COMMUNITY RESOURCES

WISE & Healthy Aging
at a GLANCE...

For more than four decades, WISE & Healthy Aging (formerly WISE Senior Services and Center for Healthy Aging) has been recognized for our innovative support programs and services designed to meet the needs of seniors and caregivers.

Benefits Enrollment Center  One in three Americans, age 65 or older, lacks the resources to meet basic food, housing and medical needs. While they would qualify for programs that could help them pay for their needs, the enrollment process is too confusing or requires on-line registration. Last year, our BEC helped 673 seniors access these public benefits.

Care Management and Home Care  More and more seniors are aging in place. In fact, 90% of baby boomers have indicated that they want to remain in their homes as long as possible. Our In-Home Services team helps to manage the care of 324 seniors.

Elder Abuse & Neglect  The City and County of Los Angeles Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program at WISE & Healthy Aging, the largest program in the nation, advocates for the rights of disabled adults and senior residents in over 1,800 long-term care facilities throughout the County. Last year, 67 state-certified volunteers logged more than 14,500 hours assisting staff. Together with staff, they conducted 9,027 unannounced facility visits. 9,981 cases were investigated by ombudsmen of which 20% involved elder abuse and neglect.

Our Adult Day Service Center provides day care to 281 frail seniors and family member caregivers. Most day care program clients suffer from early memory loss, dementia or Alzheimer’s disease. It’s a safe, enjoyable environment with trained and caring staff. WISE Minds is customized programming for those dealing with early memory loss. And “Somos Amigos” is for Spanish-speaking adult day care clients.

WISE & Healthy Aging is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation. To distribute the Guide free of cost, we sell advertising space. While we appreciate the paid listings in the Guide, their inclusion does not imply a recommendation or endorsement of products or services by WISE & Healthy Aging. Always be a vigilant consumer. Verify information and seek references where appropriate.
Information & Referral  Where do seniors turn to, be it housing, food, medical, legal, or family-related issues? Our Information & Referral Desk helps some 2,000 seniors each year deal with unexpected crises.

Alleviating Hunger  Nutrition is one of the most critical aspects of staying healthy. 24,947 hot meals were served to low-income seniors at four different locations throughout the community.

For Active Older Adults  Club 1527 is an exciting gathering place for adults age 50 and older who want to exercise, learn, travel and engage in new activities with their peers. With 1,023 members, there are classes in all types of exercise, creative arts and personal growth as well as discussion groups, a book club and excursions.

Building Personal Connections  This concierge-level service within Club 1527 provides services, assistance and programs that encourage members to get out of their homes, meet other people, participate in community activities and tap into trusted, vetted vendors for home repairs.

Transportation & Mobility Program  When one no longer drives and cannot walk long distances, getting to and from doctor appointments, the grocery or pharmacy can be a real challenge. 4,884 seniors have access to transportation resource information, AARP Driver Safety classes, and a personalized van transportation service through our Dial-A-Ride, including door-through-door service.

Supporting Caregivers  Caring for an elderly loved one is never easy. Over 200 family members attend support groups and training to learn from other family member caregivers and experts.

Training & Education Center  Our certified instructors provide nationally-recognized, evidence-based trainings in healthier living, fall prevention and chronic disease self-management. Our WISE Caregiver Training Academy focuses on evidence-based trainings for lay family and career caregivers. The Academy also conducts specialty training in Alzheimer’s Disease and Dementia (available in Spanish).

Mental Health Counseling  Trained mental health professionals and peer counselors provide individual and group therapy to more than 100 seniors. On-site and field-capable clinical services available.

WISE & Healthy Aging, a nonprofit social services organization, enhances the independence, dignity and quality of life of older adults through leadership, advocacy and innovative services.
